

Questions on Rijksmuseum ...

RIGHT OR WRONG

- Countries are now asking the Rijksmuseum to keep precious artefacts for preservation. R W
- The Rijksmuseum intends to steal some artefacts from former colonies. R W
- The Rijksmuseum is about to return some precious artefacts to Sri Lanka and Indonesia. R W
- Martine Gosselink is a Dutch historian who works for the Rijksmuseum. R W
- The Rijksmuseum has very few stolen objects in its collections. R W
- The Rijksmuseum is one of the first museums willing to return some objects. R W
- The Museum's director thinks it is a disgrace it was not done earlier. R W
- The NMWC has issued a set of procedures for museums to organise the returns. R W
- The objects to be returned by the Rijksmuseum are jewels. R W
- Museums are asked to get ready to return the stolen objects. R W
- The problem of stolen art hasn't been addressed in France yet. R W
- Macron Is not keen to return France's stolen objects. R W
- Belgium has never had any colonies so it doesn't own stolen art from Africa. R W
- Some artefacts from Congo will soon be displayed in South Korea. R W
- Britain is the most advanced of western countries when it comes to returning stolen art. R W
- M. Grütters is the Dutch minister for culture. R W
- Collected History is a magazine. R W
- The British Museum displays stolen objects, essentially. R W

VOCAB:

- an object (in a museum) =
- respected =
- to give back =
- negotiations =
- among =
- all over =
- a red gem =
- to incite =
- to bring down, to stop =

TRANSLATION

From Dibbets said... to ...on the table. »